

Eliminate Confusion Guide

What you may need and or want for your own package/kit is a daunting task for everyone. Why? It takes a lot of research, knowledge, understanding, and time with practice of use of survival items and materials to properly assemble a package/kit. Especially when you consider which items and number of items you must have to survive different conditions, with varying weather or situations you may find yourself in for uncertain periods of time. Keep in mind when you compare competitors' products, you must think in terms of the overall rating of each type of item and how that item fits into the entire survival system of essential solutions to be used daily/yearly.

Today there are almost endless choices of different products from different manufactures at present that offer different suggestion that can be very confusing, thinking in terms of:

- + Type of different items (products) required to survive, thousands to choose from
- + Total number of different items & how many of each item required.
- + Individual size of each item
- + Individual weight of each item
- + Combined weight and size of all items
- + Worldwide use, something for everybody
- + Best Value, Lowest Cost and Longest Lasting
- + All weather applications
- + Where to source the various items from
- + Who is going to gather and assemble package/kits?
- + Cost associated with all items chosen including shipping costs.
- + Portable, Is everything user friendly, easy to use on the move, how?
- + Are items safe, reliable, quality products you can trust?
- + How to purchase and pay for them, multiple vendors?
- + How to receive items (shipping) gathering everything in one place
- + Instructions on how to use items individually and together.

= too much time, energy and expertise required for most people to assemble all the essential survival items . . . You do the math! Not getting this equation right could harm or even kill you! Instead, Get The Ultimate Survival Package!

Just as importantly, you need to consider environmental impact issues that these items have when discarded, which is also critical when billions of people might use them.

So, Making Right Choices at The Right Time at The Right Prices = Real Best Value!
And, the Best Methods to Survive All Types of Disasters and Adventures Today!